Rehab Mela 2025

Dr. Mary Verghese, a trailblazer in the field of Physical Medicine & Rehabilitation (PMR) in India, established the Rehabilitation Institute in Bagayam, Vellore. Her pioneering contributions, along with the efforts of Dr. Suranjan Bhattacharji, who initiated the Spinal Cord Injury (SCI) Mela in 1994 and the Brain Injury Mela in 2004, have significantly impacted rehabilitation services in India. This year, the PMR family proudly celebrates the centennial year of Dr. Mary Verghese, marking the occasion with innovative enhancements to the Rehab Mela.

As part of this special celebration, the 22nd Brain Injury Mela was organized on February 8th, followed by the 32nd SCI Mela from February 14th to 16th. These events served as a vital platform for individuals with Acquired Brain Injury (ABI) and SCI to receive comprehensive medical assessments, including blood tests, ultrasound, cystoscopy, and CMGs. A total of 61 ABI followup patients and 210 SCI individuals benefited from these evaluations. The Psychiatry team also played a crucial role in assessing and planning interventions for neuro-behavioral sequelae following brain injuries.

The mela was enriched with vibrant peer interactions and professional guidance from physiotherapists, occupational therapists, speech therapists, psychologists, and social workers. Participants shared their challenges and successes, offering mutual encouragement. The Prosthetic and Orthotic team, in collaboration with the Worth Trust organization, provided essential maintenance for mobility aids and orthotic devices.

A unique feature of the event was the residency of several SCI individuals and their caregivers at the Mary Verghese Trust campus. Additionally, an exhibition on employment opportunities for persons with disabilities (PWDs) was held. The first day concluded with a talent show by SCI alumni, featuring a keynote address by Dr. Vinitha Ravindran, Dean, College of Nursing, CMC.

On the second day, formal sports competitions engaged SCI alumni, caregivers, staff, and students. Mr. Subramani T, District Sports & Youth Welfare Officer, Vellore, distributed prizes to the winners. In the afternoon, Mr. Rajinikanth R, Inspector of the Cybercrime team, Vellore, conducted an informative session on cybercrime awareness for individuals with disabilities. A wheelchair basketball match at the CMC Bagayam Campus further highlighted the skills of athletes with disabilities. The event was inaugurated by Dr. Vikram Mathews, Director, CMC, and Dr. Solomon Sathishkumar, Principal, CMC, who felicitated the players with an inspiring keynote address. Simultaneously, various competitions, including drawing and rangoli, were conducted at the mela premises. The day concluded with a valedictory program and cultural performances by SCI alumni and the PMR family. Keynote addresses were delivered by Dr. Balamugesh, Associate Medical Superintendent, and Dr. Ebby Simon, Associate Director (Admin), while Mr. Reni Charles, General Superintendent, CMC, distributed prizes for various competitions.

The final day of the SCI Mela focused on medical report distribution, psycho-spiritual activities, and health education sessions for participants.

Both the Brain Injury and SCI Melas provided a significant opportunity for individuals with brain and spinal cord injuries, along with their caregivers, to gather, create bonds, share experiences, renew friendships, receive quality medical care, discuss socio-economic challenges, connect to vital resources, and showcase their talents. The successful execution of these events stands as a testament to the enduring legacy of Dr. Mary Verghese and the continued commitment of the PMR family toward holistic rehabilitation and empowerment.

He lived by the belief that a meaningful life is built in the small, steady moments of care and kindness. As Dr. Atul Gawande wrote: "Our ultimate goal, after all, is not a good death but a good life to the very end." Mike embodied this sentiment, embracing each day with quiet grace, deep thoughtfulness, and an unwavering love for his family and friends. His colleagues said that "he never said anything cross to anyone and his smile never faded."

A hardworking and dedicated doctor, Dr. Mike was deeply committed to his profession. Throughout his life, he continued to maintain the friendships from his medical school, Christian Medical College Vellore, and continues to support their charity initiatives. As his school motto reads "not to be ministered unto but to minister," he fulfilled this motto by continuing to share his knowledge and skills whenever he could. He was always striving to help others, not for recognition, but because it was who he was, a follower of Christ.

Dr. Mike's international background led him to multiple countries over the course of his life and he loved to share those experiences with his family. During the 45 wonderful years of marriage to his wife they traveled to many countries and raised two devoted children, in whom he instilled the same values of kindness, love, laughter, and generosity.
